Seniors Create
Mystical Theme

"Twelfth of Never", this year's Senior Ball, will be held in the lunchroom Saturday, May 9. The dance will last from 8 to 11 p.m. John Erickson Sextet will provide music and entertainment. Decorations are centered around a mystical and fantasy-like atmosphere, as the title implies. Included in the decorations will be a castle rising into the clouds, leprechauns situated around their pots of gold, and mushroom and tree houses. Provided as a background for the pictures will be a crock and fountain.

Because 155 couples will be attending the ball, the areas included will be the lunchroom,ball and part of the terraces. All seniors interested in having a good ball are asked to sign up to help with the decorations and to help with clean up. As it stands now, the only people really working on these things are the chairman and the sub-chairman. "Help!"

Refreshments, served by next year's Loyalty girls, will be provided. Proper attire in spring suits or dresses and heels for the girls and naps for the boys.
"sanctuary" for study (?)

Shh! Where have we all heard that before? It seems we've come to associate the sound with a library. Thanks to comic strips, we get the picture of a cross-eyed, old librarian saying "shhh!" whenever one hears the slightest sound. Euphonically speaking, this is far from being true. In fact, in our library, it is getting hard to even concentrate.

Unfortunately many students resent being quieted down or asked to leave the library for talking to friends. But, why resent it? After all, there is a place for everything and we do have a Student Center for social purposes.

Of all the rooms in the school the one where we could expect to get time and conditions for study and reference work is the library. Actually, there are some people in there for intellectual pursuits. At least let's give them the consideration of keeping it quiet in the library when it's being used for its intended purpose.

Let's give everyone a break and reserve the library for study and the student center for social life.

"Graduating? Of course, what do you expect, I'm a senior aren't I? We've got it made after the commencement exercises. But, why resent it? After all, there is a tradition is broken a rule of law or rule of force. To uphold our ideal of law.

Although we set aside May 1 to observe "Law Day, U.S.A.", we should not stop our observance or celebration of our democratic way of life. Disrespect for the law is shown anytime it is neglected or ignored. Respect for the law is a condition under which our democratic way of life is enjoyed and been protected by the rule of law. We show this same disrespect by sneering at policemen, or paying little attention to simple but vital laws may have been produced because people require. At times defective or objectionable laws may have been produced because people and plans are fallible, but we have an imperative necessity to adhere to laws in a free society.

Librarians are respected by everyone. The slightest noise, a whisper, or the sound of "Pump and Circumstance" on May 29, will be considered for his place.

The first day of May seems to be quite a popular date as it is the anniversary of several things from ancient history to date. Generally, May day is thought of in reference to maypoles, danseumas, and the expression of appreciation of life itself. In truth, May day is an ancient holiday, dedicated to joy and celebration. Since we do have a democracy of the people, any new senator, representative is unable to attend, Dan Leen was chosen as an alternate to the 1964 Summer Science Research Program sponsored by the National Science Foundation at the U.W.

If one of the primary district appointees is unable to attend, Dan will be considered for his place.

Every day, three of every ten adults have not graduated from high school. With this alarming fact in mind the Lake Washington School District has proclaimed adults graduate program for the year 1964-65.

Four Attend UW Symposium

Mr. Al Udd, Mike McKeeg, Diana Siemens and Dave Trout attended the University of Washington Junior Science and Humanities Symposium, April 29 through May 1. This program was initated by the U.S. Army Office of Research to recognize outstanding high school science and mathematics students and teachers.

Dan Leen was chosen as an alternate to the 1964 Summer Science Research Program sponsored by the National Science Foundation at the U.W. If one of the primary district appointees is unable to attend, Dan will be considered for his place.

The difference between graduating and not graduating is just now realizing that they won't be a part of the commencement exercises.

Speakers Bureau Presents Issues

So that the students would acquaint themselves with the candidates, issues, problems and possible solutions of this year's gubernatorial race, Speakers' Bureau was representating some declared gubernatorial candidates this month.

Mary Peters Wins Drama Scholarship

"I didn't believe it... it seemed like a dream." This was the reaction of Mary Peters when told that she had been awarded a scholarship to study drama at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., this summer. Sponsored by the National Thespians, the program, which lasts five weeks beginning June 22, is offered to 100 high school juniors each year.

Mary will study drama eight hours a day and occasionally visit Chicago to attend plays and concerts. To be eligible, Mary had to submit an application with recommendations from three of her directors and her high school principal.

Seattle Repertory Enlists Sam, Jim

Sam Roloff, senior and Jim Mjelde, sophomore, have been cast in the Repertory Theatre. Both Sam and Jim play the parts of Hungarian peasants in a play, which takes place during the power struggles in the Hungarian Revolution. When commenting on the play, the boys said "it is very depressing for the audience."

Sam became interested in the play when he heard the theatre needed some hard-to-find German machine guns. Sam loaned some of the guns from his collection to the theatre. They asked him if he'd like to be in the play, and he accepted.

While not on stage, the boys relax by playing chess, cards and listening to music. Sounds like fun, huh?

Twins Bless Bottenbergs

One in 87 were the chances, and the Norm Bottenbergs made it: they were blessed with twins at 7 a.m. April 23. Janet Lynn, weighing 5 lbs., 9 oz., and William (Bill) Fred, weighing in at 6 lbs. 4 oz.,

They are the Bottenbergs' first children, and just what they had hoped for – boy and girl twins being fairly uncommon.

"Red and scrappy" was the proud father's first impression of the new arrivals.

Mrs. Bottenberg entered Group Health Hospital on Feb. 26 to spend the night. She was released two days later, and they went home to Roselawn.
